empowering a bright future

social entrepreneurs

at helios and matheson. we encourage social entrepreneurship by creating ecosystem where businesses are capable of operating on their own instead of relying on others. rather than providing charity to NGOs, we believe in developing 'our profit' business models, which by their very nature are self-sustaining and benefit a larger group of people from various sections of the society.

“social entrepreneurship will also help build new kind of leadership in the country. these leaders will be able to bring in benefit to the society using profit motives. they will be able to mix ancient wisdom, western leadership thought and brain to create a new thought leadership.”

- ajit rnagnekar
deputy dean, ISB
